Turning General Hospital into affordable housing

BY LA TIMES TODAY STAFF | EAST LOS ANGELES
 PUBLISHED 10:15 AM PT JAN. 05, 2023

Los Angeles' General Hospital was once the crown jewel of LA County's medical system and the iconic backdrop for one of TV's longest-running daytime soap operas. But, for over a decade, the medical complex has stood vacant. Now, there are plans to breathe new life into the abandoned hospital. LA Times senior writer Doug Smith joined Lisa McRee on "LA Times Today" to share the county's plans.

General Hospital's 35-acre campus has several buildings and stretches of land. Smith said LA County is asking developers to come up with ideas on how to turn the campus into affordable housing.

"The hospital building itself, which stands on a hill above the campus, will become possibly 300 to 700 units of housing for homeless people and affordable housing. Other parts of the campus could be used for what's called a 'restorative village,' which will have facilities for people recovering from physical illnesses and also people recovering from mental illnesses. There's another 12 to 15 acres that will probably be mostly housing, some open space, some community space, maybe art museum space," Smith explained.

LA County Supervisor Hilda Solis has made it a point to include the surrounding community in the plans for General Hospital.

"A lot of the things that are going to be built there are going to be accessible to the community. There's a child care center that is going to be completed in December and that will be open to people who work in the hospitals, but also the community," Smith said.

Community Priorities Advisory Committee (CPAC)

- The Community Priorities Advisory Committee, composed of community leaders and local residents, met in December 2022 to review publicly available community engagement documents related to the potential redevelopment of the historic General Hospital and West Campus.
- The Committee is in the process of identifying core community priorities for the site to ensure the project delivers on its promise to provide highly needed and valued benefits to the local community.
- The Committee will meet next week to deliver the final report

Community Priorities

- Build housing that serves the needs of current community residents and addresses gaps in the available housing mix across a range of affordability levels including extremely and deeply affordable housing
- Build housing that serves a range of family sizes through diverse unit sizes including multi-bedroom units
- Increase supportive housing services across the campus for our most vulnerable community members, including homeless housing
- Create commercial-space opportunities that nurture and support small, local and emerging businesses, such as business incubator and affordable retail-commercial spaces with preference for opportunities for local business expansion
- Establish preference for local retailers that offer culturally-responsive and affordable products and services to the current local resident population, including a highly-needed grocery store
- Create features and spaces that provide community services, are accessible by the local community, and enhance community well-being
- Respect the legacy of the campus and its important role in the history of the local community through preservation of historic features with potential repurpose as arts and culture and/or commemorative spaces
- Increase parking and improve transit and access to the campus to facilitate ease of use and limit spill-over congestion impacts on the local community
- Provide a complete plan to ensure workforce development specifically benefits the local resident population to mitigate displacement and gentrification concerns and provide pipeline programs to living-wage jobs in the near and long terms
